BROKERS AND THEIR CLERKS ESTABLISH A "STOCK CURB."

Successful Emulation of Long-Established New York Custom-New Institution Does Business at the Corner of Fourth and Olive Streets Every Afternoon and Is Considered an Open-Air Session of the Stock Exchange.

BROKERS AND THEIR CLERKS AT THE FIRST SESSION OF THE ST. LOUIS STOCK CURB.

St. Louis is experiencing a new specula- summation of the orders placed by out ive sensation. She is reveling in the de- | siders. lights of a "stock curb." In New York this is a long and well established institution, which has come to be regarded as a fixture. Until recently the need for a curb market in St. Louis was not apparent. Trading proseeded in a humdrum sort of way, and often there was not enough business to justify the forty-five-minute session of the local Stock Exchange. With the beginning of World's Fair acivity all precedents were overcome. Bank and trust company stocks advanced with remarkable activity, and the dally session f brokers proved all too short for the con-

afternoon on the southwest corner of Fourth and Olive streets. Brokers and brokers' clerks meet there daily and make bids and offers under the autumn sky. Messenger boys and policemer and inoffensive citizens form a circle around the traders. To all intents and purposes, i s an open-air session of the Stock Exchange.

The prices made are not officially quoted, but they are accepted as a guidance in all of the brokers' offices. They give the best possible line on the succeeding day's quota

BANNER DAY FOR ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS

More Buyers Arrived Than on Any Previous Day, and Large Orders Were Placed.

ALL BUSINESS REPRESENTED.

Greater Inducements in Transportation Offered Since Frisco Acquired the Memphis Railroad Big Dry Goods Sales.

Visiting merchants came to St. Louis yesterday in greater numbers than on any previous day this season, Not fewer than 400 buyers were in the city, and merchants in all lines of trade in the wholesale dry goods, millinery and boot and shoe business eported wonderfully large sales, Yesterday being the second opening day for the fall season of the wholesale millinery-houses, the arrivals of women were larger than they have been for two weeks. Some of them spent only yesterday in the city, while others will remain a week or ten days selecting their stocks.

All merchants along Washington avenue agree in predicting that the business in September will show a material increase over the same month last year. They remember also that last year was a recordbreaking one for business in St. Louis.

Greater inducements have been offered to nerchants to come to St. Louis than ever before. Facilities for reaching the city have been improved. Forrest Ferguson, president of the Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Company, stated yesterday that he believed the equisition of the Kansas City and Memphis Railroad by the Frisco and the recent removal of the general offices of the Mem-phis branch to St. Louis was second in im-portance to this city to the World's Fair only, Mr. Ferguson said:

"The Memphis cut right across the Gulf Stream to St. Louis's great Southwestern territory, and being strictly a Kansas City and Memphis line, its officials naturally tried to build up the wholesale business of those burgs, at the expense of St. Louis. Indeed, ever since that road was built St. Louis has expensed difficulty in doing Louis has experienced difficulty in doing business in all the local territory of that system. On the other hand, the Frisco is a stanch and loyal friend to St. Louis under all circumstances, and will, I believe, be fair to Kansas City, Memphis and all other towns reached by its greater system, but you may be sure that it will take care of the interests of St. Louis. short distance away to gather potatoes, leaving her three little sisters in the house asisep. The father had gone to his day's work.

The girl saw the flames and ran to the house and when she reached it the structure was in flames, fire was falling from the ceilings and the bedding and carpets were in flames. She entered the children's bedroom and carried them to safety, As she left the burning building with the last child the roof fell in, covering her with fiying brands and igniting her clothing.

By this time several neighbors had gathered and extinguished the girl's burning garments. Two of the small children were slightly burned, and the girl who risked her life was badly burned about the hands and feet. The house and contents were a total loss.

This customer was in St. Louis stocks of dry goods. Being a cautious man, he decided to see what he could do in New York. It did not take him long to decide, and when he returned to St. Louis his order was placed without delay.

Several other customers of this firm have had a similar experience this season, and the same conditions are reported by other firms along Washington avenue. The St. Louis market offers to buyers.
